ID 400 level course options for General Studies For 2012-2013 Academic Year

These courses are available Fall and Spring semesters. These courses are all 3 semester hours.

ID 430	Provides a historical overview of how law and the legal system
Women and the Law	in the United States have defined women's status from the Revolutionary War period to the present in such areas as family law, criminal law, property and contract rights, earnings, and rights of citizenship. From this historical perspective, selected contemporary issues are examined, including statutory, regulatory, and constitutional remedies to gender bias or inequities; family violence, divorce, custody, and economic/employment issues. The effectiveness of the courts, legislatures, and other forums in resolving these issues is also examined. Fulfills general studies requirement and serves as an Available Fall and Spring	elective in Women's Studies minor. Prerequisite: Successful completion of at least one ID 3xx course.
ID 440	An integrative historical and cultural study of the relationship of Women, Values, and	values and power as they pertain to the development of women's Leadership	leadership skills in a global, diverse and changing society.
Available Fall, Spring and	Fulfills general studies requirement.
Summer

These courses are only available in the Fall Semester.

ID 420	Study of literature that raises moral issues, such as slavery and Literature and the Moral	equality, justice and mercy, science and technology, the relationship of men and women, gender issues, moral dilemmas in war, and the role of faith and belief in moral questions. Fulfills general studies requirement. Prerequisite: Successful completion Available Fall only	of at least one ID 3xx course.

These courses are only available in the Spring Semester.

ID 415	An advanced seminar focused on significant classical and Feminist Theory	contemporary writings that give different perspectives on womanhood and women's experiences. The two main tasks of the course are to critique existing theories in order to understand the debates on women's oppression on the one hand, and women's powers on the other. Extensive group work or on-line networking. Fulfills general studies requirement and Women's Studies minor requirement. Prerequisites: WS 101 (for minors), Available Spring only	and successful completion of at least one ID 3xx course.
ID 437	Explores the ethical challenge of increased competition for world Environmental Ethics	resources. Examines how changing understandings of stewardship, fairness and rights shape moral choice in issues including distribution of goods, care of nature and care of human Available Spring only	populations. Prerequisite: successful completion of at least one
(8-WK/COHORT)	ID 3xx course
(6 ,, 12 6 6 16 11)	